

Weekly Market Summary – 12/31/2012

Equity markets gave up some ground in the final full week of trading in 2012. Most domestic index losses fell just short of 2 percent. International markets bucked the trend and locked in positive performance, further distancing themselves from domestic markets for year-to-date performance. Read more now.

Weekly Market Summary – 12/27/2012

Despite a large sell-off on Friday, equity markets posted strong gains heading into the home stretch for 2012. The S&P 500 rose 1.21 percent, while small-cap stocks, measured by the Russell 2000 Index, were the biggest winners, gaining more than 3 percent. The Dow Jones Industrial Average held true to form: it not only lagged on the week but it is behind year-to-date as well. Read more now.

Weekly Market Summary – 12/17/2012

The Federal Reserve (Fed) announced last week that it will continue purchasing $45 billion in longer-term Treasuries on a monthly basis and discontinue selling short-term securities. In addition, the Fed will continue purchasing $40 billion in mortgage-backed securities per month, considerably expanding its balance sheet.

Weekly Market Summary – 12/11/2012

Equity markets were fairly strong last week, as the S&P 500 Index gained 0.20 percent. Weakness in technology-related names, however, worked to the disadvantage of the Nasdaq Composite, which lost ground on the week. Read more now.

Weekly Market Summary –

12/4/12

Equity markets posted modest gains last week. The S&P 500 Index gained 56 basis points (0.56 percent), but the higher-beta Nasdaq Composite and Russell 2000 Index were the best performers, increasing well over 1 percent. The Dow Jones Industrial Average lagged. Read more now.

Weekly Market Summary – 11/27/12

Equity markets started the holiday season in a festive mood, as the S&P 500 surged 3.65 percent last week, in part due to perceived progress in Washington, DC regarding the fiscal cliff. Read more now.

Weekly Market Summary – 11/19/12

As we approach the end of the year with no fiscal cliff resolution, we would anticipate Treasury yields to move lower and out of the range they have been in since midsummer. The 10-year Treasury stood at 1.58 percent late last week, close to the bottom of the range, which is 1.54 percent; however, it remains above its recent low of 1.38 percent. Read more now.

Weekly Market Summary – 11/5/12

It's been a relatively uneventful few months in the Treasury space, even with the announcements from the Federal Reserve, the impending election, and continued concerns out of Europe. Read more now.

Weekly Market Summary – 10/30/12

Equity markets retreated last week, and the S&P 500 lost 1.48 percent. The Dow Jones Industrial Average was the biggest loser, declining 1.79 percent, while the Nasdaq was the best performer on a relative basis, losing just 58 basis points (0.58 percent). Read more now.

Weekly Market Summary – 10/22/11

Treasury yields were up considerably late last week on better economic numbers and earnings reports; however, they are still within the range set in early August.

Equity markets were mixed, with the S&P 500 gaining 34 basis points (0.34 percent) and the technology-heavy Nasdaq losing 1.26 percent. Read more now.
